

Marmara University Atatürk Faculty of Education The Department Of English Language Teaching

The primary objective of the Department of English Language Teaching (DELT) is to assist prospective teachers in gaining sufficient proficiency in English and to provide them with the necessary skills to teach English as a foreign language. The İÖABD offers double major and minor programs. Those who do not have sufficient English knowledge to follow the courses after enrolling in the program are required to attend a one-year preparatory class. Professional courses, including subjects such as linguistics and foreign language teaching methods, form the core of the program to improve the English skills of teacher candidates. Elective courses provide teacher candidates with the opportunity to develop themselves in cultural and professional topics in their areas of interest.

Education

The DELT undergraduate program consists of courses related to subject knowledge, general culture, and pedagogical training. Education and training lasts for 4 years, and courses are theoretical and practical. In addition, a master's program is also offered within the Institute of Educational Sciences.

Facilities and Employment Prospects

The Faculty of Education has ERASMUS+ student exchange agreements with various universities in the Czech Republic, Denmark, and Poland. Students who meet the necessary requirements can benefit from the double major program.

Graduates of the Faculty of Education can work as teachers, as well as in embassies and the tourism sector.

About The Faculty

Atatürk Faculty of Education, one of the first institutions in Turkey to train teachers, has become a leading institution in its field by continuously renewing and expanding on its legacy, and is one of the most important sources of teachers in our country. Our faculty embraces its historical legacy while proudly carrying the name of the great leader Gazi Mustafa Kemal Atatürk, who said, "Teachers! The Republic needs guardians who are strong and of high character in thought, knowledge, science, and physique. It is in your hands to raise the new generation with these characteristics and abilities." Our faculty accepts the responsibility placed on teachers by these words as its raison d'être.

Our faculty aims to contribute to national and universal knowledge by training teachers equipped with the necessary skills at the level of contemporary civilization. Classrooms are largely equipped with technological infrastructure. In addition, depending on the characteristics of the programs, music halls, individual music practice rooms, seminar rooms, science and computer laboratories, painting and art workshops, an art gallery, and a library/reading room are also available to students.

In addition to their teaching activities, our faculty members contribute to national and international academic work and also contribute to various in-service training programs for teachers and education administrators currently in service. Our faculty also runs national and international faculty and student exchange programs. Within this scope, student mobility under the ERASMUS+ International Student Exchange Program and the FARABI National Teaching Staff and Student Exchange Program continues to increase each year.
